Hi Helen – here is the exchange on the use of EPA's facilitation services and/or funding. I'm not sure if they can provide a facilitator or would simply fund an outside person, which of course would take you right back to Dan's concern. But perhaps we first need to find out what they can offer and if we would qualify.

Good news so far. I also talked to Ted briefly in the hallway. He thought this case sounded like a really good candidate, but we'll have to do a pitch to the HQ office and it will of course depend on the budget.

Thanks, Ted. We'll be briefing Dan Opalski on current status in the coming days. I'll have a better read on when it makes sense to pursue this further with CPRC after we talk with Dan and start to tee up an initial meeting with Ecology and the Tribe. Stay tuned.

We do use CPRC to help set up/arrange for a third party neutral. Given the sequester I'm not sure how much money other DC offices would be willing to kick in but the involvement of the Kallispell Tribe and two states as well as a federal agency may make it easier to fund. Let's talk.

Hi Ted,

I thought I'd check in with you on dispute resolution opportunities and the email from HQ below.

The TMDL program is interested in exploring ADR opportunities further. Is your work on conflict resolution done in connection with the folks below? Any thoughts on how to tap into EPA's available resources, either with the office below or elsewhere, would be much appreciated. - Kim
